Man in the spotlight

There is little debate about the challenges that confronted Michael Mace when he was named RMC president almost a year ago. Since then he has mobilized the campus community to make critical changes . . .

New P.A. director and medical director welcomed

Joe Tritchler isn't exactly coming back home. But he's no stranger to the Rocky Mountain College campus or this region.

The new director of Rocky's Physician Assistant Program filled in as academic coordinator for the program in 2002 for seven months.

His wife, Linda Christoffersen Tritchler, grew up due south of Billings in Byron, Wyo., and still has family there.

Originally from Minnesota, Tritchler received a bachelor's degree in microbiology and master's degree in clinical lab science from Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah. After serving in the U.S. Air Force, he completed his physician assistant training at Des Moines University in Iowa.

In April, he officially retired after 12 years with the U.S. Public Health Service. While with the PHS, he most recently was interim director of the Integrated Diabetes Education and Health Care Model Program in Cass Lake, Minn.

A distinguished general surgeon with almost 40 years of medical experience has come out of retirement to serve as medical director of the Rocky Mountain College Physician Assistant Program.

David E. Klein, M.D., who retired from active practice in July 2000, began his career in 1959 after earning his doctoral degree from Harvard Medical School. His B.A. was awarded by Dartmouth College.

From 1966 until his retirement Dr. Klein was a partner in Surgical Clinic, P.C., in Billings, serving on the medical staff of St. Vincent Hospital and Billings Deaconess Medical Center. He is a past president of the St. Vincent Hospital medical staff.

Dr. Klein was a founder-director of the St. Vincent Burn Team and a founder-director of the St. Vincent HELP Helicopter team.

He is a member of the Yellowstone Valley Medical Society, the Montana Medical Association, and is a Fellow of American College of Surgeons and a past president of the Montana-Wyoming Chapter of the American College of Surgeons.

He was a member of the Southwestern Surgical Congress from 1974-2000 and since 1981 has been a member of the Western Surgical Society.

From 1986-1989 he served on the surgical faculty of the Wyoming Family Practice Residency Program in Casper.

Computer Science receives $10,000 from Crytech

Rocky Mountain College's computer science department will benefit from a $10,000 donation from First Interstate Bank and the First Interstate Bank Foundation.

Citing the high quality of Rocky Mountain College graduates, Jonathan Scott, president of Crytech.com, a wholly-owned subsidiary of First Interstate Bank, said his high tech company finds it difficult to develop skilled people and RMC has been a good resource for employees.

"Rocky graduates are exceptional. We want to encourage them to stay local and we want to be involved in helping with that," Scott said.

K. Stuart Smith, RMC computer science professor, said the money would be used to upgrade labs with new computers and monitors.

"We're grateful to have this partnership with a technology employer," Smith said. "Crytech is an outstanding company and they present great opportunities to Rocky."

New admission director named

Laurie Rodriguez has been hired as RMC's new director of admissions.

A native of Laurel, Rodriguez graduated from Carroll College in 1995 with a Bachelor of Arts in Business Administration, concentrations in both management and finance.

While a student at Carroll, she completed internships with Johnson Controls and Walt Disney World, Co.

In 2000, Rodriguez was hired as an admission counselor at Carroll College and soon after was promoted to assistant director.

During her tenure at Carroll she served on various advisory committees, in addition to serving as both the student ambassador and dance team advisor.

Only two months after assuming the presidency of Rocky Mountain College, Michael Mace invited Headstart children into the festively decorated Great Room at Prescott to read a Christmas story. There were dark shadows ahead, but Mace signaled with the story he chose how he would illuminate the path ahead. "Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer" brightened the season for children, and for Rocky's coming year.

The Rocky fiscal year ended June 30, and what a year it has been.

There were happenings you could have expected: more excellent teaching by a great faculty, significant learning by students, and an excellent record again of graduates getting jobs or getting into grad school (100% of those returning the questionnaire). Once again U.S. News & World Report ranked us in the top ten for best comprehensive colleges in the West and the top ten for best buys in the West. Both our men and our women skiers finished second nationally, against schools of all sizes, not just NAIA schools. And seven of our twelve national skiers were Academic All-Americans as well. We also have an All-American golfer, Rachel Warren.

But, nobody could have predicted the financial turnaround Rocky has experienced. We started the year in a fragile financial condition, so much so that our accreditation was in danger. For five years in a row the college had suffered deficits in its operations budget, requiring more borrowing and depleting our reserves. But we ended the year with a surplus, compared to a $1.4 million deficit last year. That surplus went toward rebuilding our depleted undesignated reserve, also helped substantially by a million dollar gift from an anonymous donor. That same donor gave another $2 million to the Rocky endowment.

And, all that good news led to the great news about our undergraduate accreditation being reaffirmed. Our Masters programs for Accountancy and Physician's Assistants were also accredited.

The letter from the President of the NWCCU stated: "The Commission commends Rocky Mountain College for the clarity of its mission and the dedication of its faculty and staff in accomplishing it. Moreover, the Commission finds laudable the College's distance delivery program that has been exemplary in providing educational services to underserved populations, especially Native Americans in tribal settings. In addition, the Commission applauds the College for its services to low income and first generation college students which results in academic retention and success. Lastly, the Commission commends the College for the effectiveness of its academic programs that results in graduates successfully meeting certification requirements as well as for the work of librarians in achieving exemplary information access and services."

The accreditation (along with the other commendations) is good news. And, the good finances reflect the great work of the Development Division, the Board of Trustees, staff and faculty and some extraordinary friends of the college.

So, this next year we should expect a repetition of the good things: students having their lives changed and horizons expanded and careers launched. With your help we can expect more good financial news as we strengthen our base.

Thanks to all of you for making last year a great year. I have thoroughly enjoyed my time as president for the last nine months, and I am looking forward to this next year with enthusiasm.

Michael Mace, RMC President

Alumni Almanac

One of RMC's winningest teams reunited for induction into RMC's Ring of Honor

“When Bob “Pappy” Nees first heard the 1947-48 Rocky Mountain College men’s basketball team was going to be on the court Saturday night at the Fortin Center, he said he told some of his former teammates ‘to start getting in shape and be ready,” wrote Bill Bighaus, sports reporter for The Billings Gazette.

Bighaus wrote about the six surviving members of the original RMC team when they were inducted into the RMC Ring of Honor. Nees, from Miles City, was one of the reserves on the grand old 1947-48 team, which put together a 31-1 record and still ranks as the school's winningest basketball team ever. He was joined by his brother Dale Nees, 77, of Scappoose Ore.; Chuck Mason, 80, of Glendive; Don “Babe” McDonald, 78, of Cohagen, John Heinrich, 78, of Lehi, Utah, and Oliver Pease, 84, of Billings.

“They were champions before they got here because most of them fought in World War II,” said Rocky athletic director Terry Corey. “And they were champions afterwards.”

Heather Rathbun Nitz named new alumni and parent relations director

Heather (Rathbun) Nitz, a 2001 graduate of Rocky Mountain College, is the new RMC director of alumni and parent relations. Recently married, Heather served as Miss Montana 2002-2003, and was a Peace Corps volunteer in the Ukraine before accepting her new position. Before that she worked at Yellowstone Boys and Girls Ranch teaching horsemanship to emotionally disturbed children.

A Darby, Mont. native, she was an active student at RMC where she served as a senator for the Associated Students of RMC, a residence hall assistant, and majored in social studies education and equine training. As a Peace Corps volunteer she taught English to six through 12 grades and built an English Language Resource Center.

As Miss Montana, she traveled to 370 schools across the state, speaking to 55,000 school students about courtesy, respect and not bullying.

"I found Rocky to be a great place to be a student, so I jumped at the chance to work here," Heather said. "I've enjoyed getting to see all of the different directions people go from Rocky Mountain College. I had a great time with the 50 year class reunion at graduation and with the 6th Annual Alumni Association Golf Scramble, and I'm looking forward to the '60s reunion. I hope all of our Alums will continue to keep us posted, as we enjoy hearing from them and bragging about them!"

Executive Secretary to three RMC presidents dies

SYLVIA DIESSNER MICK

Rocky Mountain College mourns the loss of a dear friend. Sylvia Diessner Mick, who passed away on April 2, 2006, at Central Montana Skilled Nursing Care Facility in Lewistown, Mont.

Sylvia was born on June 21, 1911, in Chaska, Minn. She was the oldest of four daughters born to Henry GD Diessner and Bertha (Newkirk) Diessner, both of whom were physicians. Sylvia graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1932 with a degree in business.

Sylvia met her future husband, Gordon F. Mick, on a blind date arranged by Sylvia's sister, Gladys. They were married on Sept. 9, 1939, in Minneapolis. She and Gordon lived in California, Butte, and Great Falls, before moving to Billings in 1952, where Gordon managed Building Service, Inc. Sylvia spent her time raising two daughters, Sandra (Ed) Hanson of Lewistown and Carol Mick of Billings, before going to work at Rocky Mountain College. She worked at Rocky in many capacities from 1960 to 1980 and was the executive secretary to three college presidents: Dr. Phillip Widenhouse, Dr. Lawrence Small, and Dr. Bruce Alton.

Besides being a devoted mother, Sylvia loved reading and traveling. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, PEO Chapter AS, the American Legion Auxiliary, a volunteer for the RSVP, Yellowstone County Council on Aging, and was a benefactor to the Yellowstone Boys and Girls Ranch.

Sylvia was preceded in death by her husband, Gordon; parents, and her sister, Viola King. She is survived by her daughters, Sandra and Carol; sisters Laura Newman of Butte, Gladys Hanson of Indiana; five grandchildren, Trent, Scott, Mark, Julie (Jeremy) and Jared (Orion); and five great-grandchildren.

A memorial service was held on April 8th.

Keebler named Cleveland clinic chief resident; Egnew wins Fullbright Scholar grant

Dr. Allen Keebler, right, has been named a chief resident at the prestigious Cleveland Clinic.

Allen Keebler of Billings has been named one of two chief residents in anesthesiology at Cleveland Clinic Foundation. He is a graduate of Billings Christian School and Rocky Mountain College. He graduated from medical school at the University of Health Sciences at Kansas City, Mo., in 2004. His parents are Les and Pam Keebler of Billings

Thomas R. Egnew, Behavioral Science Coordinator at Tacoma Family Medicine, Tacoma, Wash., has been awarded a Fulbright Scholar grant to lecture and consult at Otago University in New Zealand, during the 2006-2007 academic year, according to the United States Department of State and the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board. Egnew, from Hardin, Mont., graduated from Rocky in 1970. Egnew will serve as an honorary senior lecturer in the Department of General Practice, Dunedin School of Medicine. Egnew is one of approximately 800 U. S. faculty and professionals who will travel abroad to some 150 countries for the 2006-2007 academic year through the Fulbright Scholar Program.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN COLLEGE ANNUAL REPORT 2004-2005

Your support of Rocky Mountain College results in many accomplishments and certainly foremost is the graduation each year of young people ready to contribute to their communities and careers. This report features scenes from Commencement 2006 a celebration of RMC achievement you helped make possible.

As careful as we have been in preparing this report, we may have missed or misspelled a name, or placed a name in the wrong category. If so, we apologize and request that you let us know so that a correction may be made. Donors are listed in appreciation of gifts received between July 1, 2004, and June 30, 2005. Gifts received since July 1, 2005, will be acknowledged in the 2005-2006 Annual Report.

Your support of Rocky Mountain College results in many notable accomplishments by our students, faculty and staff. In this annual report we feature a small representation of the exciting achievements during the past year. RMC has been blessed with excellent coverage from The Billings Gazette to the Chronicle of Higher Education. An exceptional story about RMC in The Big Sky Journal this summer poignantly described what makes this brave college extraordinary. RMC's fame is growing, and you've helped make that happen.

As careful as we have been in preparing this report, we may have missed or misspelled a name, or placed a name in the wrong category. If so, we apologize and request that you let us know so that a correction may be made. Donors are listed in appreciation of gifts received between July 1, 2005, and June 30, 2006. Gifts received since July 1, 2006, will be acknowledged in the 2006-2007 Annual Report.

RMC Vice President for American Indian Affairs is congratulated by Gov. Brian Schweitzer after he appointed her to the Board of Regents, marking another outstanding achievement by Dr. Pease (photo courtesy of MSU-Billings); Left, bottom, Amanda Hill, featured in a Gazette story about the Services for Academic Success program, exemplified the kind of commitment students make to reach their goals (photo courtesy James Woodcock, Billings Gazette).

Robert H. Lyon, a speech professor from 1954 to 1989 at RMC, died Sept. 15. Lyon was honored for his devotion to RMC's forensic program which was revitalized this past year as RMC's forensics teams were successful in meets across the West. Lyon had a hand in training many of the communication educators working today. He coached a vibrant program for many years, and forensic professionals in the mountain region respected him as a granddad of intercollegiate speech and debate.

FACULTY & STAFF

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Dr. Eddie Dupuy, RMC academic vice president, was invited to address a meeting of Town & Gown in January. His speech was titled, "Liberal Arts on the Rocks: Bourbon and the Clash of Culture." Dr. Dupuy also conducted a four-week discussion series at St. Pius X Church discussing Walker Percy, Flannery O'Connor, Graham Greene, and Andre Dubus. The series ran on Tuesday evenings in March and April.

As Chief Ground Instructor for the Aviation Program, Scott Wilson, RMC aviation instructor met with the Federal Aviation Agency regarding Rocky's "Airline Dispatcher" course. After extensive revisions and updates, the course was re-certified by the FAA for another 2 years.

As a Captain in the Naval Reserve, Wilson completed an on-line "Strategy and Policy" course with the Naval War College in January 2006. The course involved two weeks in Newport, Rhode Island, followed by on-line discussion with other senior officers around the country, and the completion of two 5,000 word essays on military strategy. Capt. Wilson was also the class leader for an "Advanced Professional Military Education" course at the Joint Forces Command College in Norfolk, Va. The course involved 150 hours of on-line lessons and dialogue, and a project regarding the Global War on Terrorism. This was followed by a two-week military exercise in Norfolk in March 2006. This summer, Declan Magee and Conall O'h Artghaile, both 21 and multimedia-design students at different colleges of the University of Ulster, studied at Rocky under the international program administered by director Ken Briggs. Rocky Mountain College was among the first schools participating in the Business Education Initiative in 1994. Since then, 17 students from Northern Ireland have come to Billings, and nine Rocky students have studied in Northern Ireland under the program. The program was started by Catholic, Presbyterian and Methodist churches in Northern Ireland to strengthen the economy and curb political turmoil to allow peace to flourish.

FACULTY & STAFF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Captain Wilson participated in a Homeland Security course at Joint Forces Command College.

Dan Hargrove, RMC aviation director, was invited to speak at the Northwest Aviation Conference in Seattle, Wash. and at the Montana State Aviation Conference in Helena. He spoke on education and training in Technically Advanced Aircraft, an area in which Rocky is developing great expertise.

David Ison, RMC aviation professor, is active writing articles for aviation magazines and journals. He recently authored "Getting to Know Angle of Attack" in May 2006 Plane & Pilot Magazine. The treatise addressed how pilots can avoid flying in a manner that causes the airplane wing to stall. The article outlines why pilots tend to stall and how to prevent it from happening; "Avoiding CFIT" April Plane & Pilot Magazine, focussed on many accidents which occur in aviation when pilots unintentionally and often unknowingly fly a fully functional aircraft into the ground. This article discusses the problem and how to avoid it using situational awareness; "Where's the Cushion?" March Plane & Pilot Magazine spoke to how it is often taught that an airplane floats on a cushion of air as it is about to touchdown on the runway. This perceived "float" is real, but the cause is often misunderstood. This article examined the aerodynamic reasoning behind ground effect: "Radar Approaches" April IFR Refresher Magazine examined air traffic control radar assisted approaches to airports. If pilots lose their onboard navigation systems, this may be the only way they can get back on the ground. However, these approaches are rarely practiced or discussed.

The 13th annual Festival of Cultures was greeted by perfect weather, a welcome change from last year's damp day. Exceptionally large crowds attended, enjoying the Caledonian Pipes & Drums, Middle Eastern Dancers - Tajjamul and Munirah, Celtic Fusion and their Irish Step Dancers, Leikarring's Norwegian dancers, Young drummers from Japan's Kumamoto Plaza, Clogging Appalachian style by the Wildwood Cloggers, and a Festival favorite, the Mexican group, Los Guadalupanos. One of the most impressive stories this year was the students. Rocky alum and former Institute work-study, Heidi Sims, took unpaid vacation days to help. Yukari Nagamine -- citizen of Japan, former Institute work-study and Rocky alum -- flew in from Alabama to take part. Emails of best wishes came from Upulee Dasanayake of Sri Lanka who is currently working in Washington D.C. and from Lidija Futac, from her hometown of Frankfurt, Germany. Work study students Michiko Hashinokuchi and Michelle Fuhrman manned the international croquet field. Work study student Farida Muhamud helped in the African Area.

Elizabeth McNamer, professor of religious studies, took 20 students to Bethsaida in May. Rocky Mountain College is part of the consortium that supports this dig. McNamer was featured on the History channel in April as part of a documentary on the Historical Jesus. She received the "Person of Faith" award given each year by the Montana Association of Churches. She also served on Town and Gown Board, the PBS Board, the RMC Institute for Peace Studies, and the Bethsaida

Audrey Jurovich's 33 years as school nurse at Rocky Mountain College began with the expectation that the job would be boring. As it turned out it never was, she said. Jurovich, 70, was the subject of an article by Dianne Cochran for The Billings Gazette. The resilient nurse credited her vitality to regular doses of fish oil. She never has called in sick.

"I've never had to have a replacement," she said.

Students haven't changed much during her tenure, Jurovich said.

"I would say they're a little more open than they used to be," she said.

Excavations Project. She was one of four panelists for the symposium on successful women. McNamer continues to write frequent columns for the Religion section of The Billings Gazette and is a frequent guest speaker at several local churches.

Bill Kehler, RMC assistant librarian, completed a three-year term on the Montana Book Award committee. Jan Jelinek, RMC library director, will be replacing Kehler on the committee. The Montana Book Award was founded in 2002 and winners are selected by a committee of individuals representing geographic distribution throughout Montana.

Dr. Steven Werpy was an adjudicator for the District 11 Music Festival in Poplar, April 7 and 8. He judged instrumental solos and ensembles, jazz ensembles, show choirs, and concert bands.

Dr. Ulrich Hoensch, RMC assistant professor of mathematics, was a speaker at the National AMS/MAA Conference in San Antonio, Texas, in January 2006. He gave a talk with the title "Java Marilyn Randall, RMC professor of equestrian studies, was honored by the Montana Quarter Horse Association and the American Quarter Horse Association as the Most Valuable Professional in Montana. She also received recognition from the American Quarter Horse Association for eight years of volunteer service as a ring steward for the AQHYA World Championship Show.

Gerry Roe, RMC professor of theatre arts, spent last spring on sabbatical in New York City studying theater. While there, he took classes, attended various workshops, participated in a 10 week symposium on Steven Sondheim, and even auditioned. He attended 43 plays, musicals and reviews. Upon returning to Billings, he directed “Beauty and the Beast” for Billings Studio Theater. At Rocky, Gerry directed “The Diary of Anne Frank” and “A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum,” assisted by the new technical theater professor, Sarah Myers. In May, Gerry acted in Venture Theater’s “Urinetown, the Musical.”

Sarah Myers, RMC technical theatre professor and three theatre tech students -- Ali Shubert, Jonathan Allender-Zivic, and Kirstin Abrams -- attended the United States Institute for Theatre Technicians March 28-April 2. USITT, which is the association of design, production, and technology professionals in the performing arts and entertainment industry, is the "Who's Who" of the technical theatre world. Founded in 1960, USITT's mission is to actively promote the advancement of the knowledge and skills of its members and its more than 3,600 members live, work, and do business throughout the United States, Canada, and 40 other countries. While at the conference, they attended three plays at the Humana Festival, which is an annual festival of never-before-performed plays.

There were four days of workshops attended by the students. Workshops were taught by industry professionals and esteemed faculty. These included everything from "How to Build a Corset" to "Using Pyrotechnics." The students also had the opportunity to meet with the commissions that will be in charge of next year's sessions and give their input. For three days, there was a huge Expo Hall where vendors and graduate schools and professional theatres set up booths. The students met one-on-one with potential graduate schools and applied for work over the summer. They also registered to win prizes and give-aways. Kirstin won a set of stage boxes (used for acting and storage) and Jonathan won a three day master class in lighting design at NYU. Myers is the vice commissioner on the education commission and time spent networking and meeting with other professors who teach technical theatre. The Institute oversees 10 commissions that are responsible for planning the sessions and aiding the professional growth of their constituents. Myers was in charge of networking and development, and programming for Phoenix 2007. The trip gave her the opportunity to introduce her students to influential people as well as to promote RMC's theatre program. She also served on one of the panels this year and chaired another. Within her field, a panel session is considered published work.

Angie Cormier, RMC Spanish instructor, had her Spanish students help with the after-school Spanish program at McKinley Elementary for several years. There were usually 18-20 students signed up. She switched to Rose Park Elementary, expecting about the same response. The principal and the PTA sent a survey home to gauge interest, and the response was very positive. She set up an after-school Spanish Club and sent home registration slips. Sixty three elementary students signed up as members! She was fortunate recruiting RMC students to help. Jeri Matter, Rachel Schulta, Mal Tift, Fabiano Jacome and William de Souza have done a fabulous job, Cormier reports, and they were invited back this year.

"Nick Moore was at a veterinarian clinic in Wyoming working on horses' teeth when he got a bright idea," wrote Mary Pickett of The Billings Gazette as she introduced readers to the Rocky Mountain College student's bright idea for a headlamp to use when examining horses' mouths. The bulb on a headlamp that he was using burned out and couldn't be replaced. The high-intensity bulb used to illuminate the long, dark horse's mouth emitted so much heat that it had to be sealed in plastic, making it impossible to change. A lamp with a bright bulb that could be quickly changed was needed, Moore thought, and he set about making one. It took a year to develop the light he named Equi-Lite. He sells the lamps on his Web site, www.equinespecialties.net, and through an Idaho-based company, World Wide Equine Inc.

Dr. Vickie Christie and husband, Dr. John Battaglia, taught two courses, Intercultural Communication and Freedom of Speech and Democracy, for the University of Pittsburgh's Semester at Sea program in the summer of 2005. Her husband, an adjunct English instructor at Rocky, taught a course on Travel Journal Writing. With their two children, Claire and Andrew, they flew to the Bahamas, then boarded the MV Explorer, one of two of the fastest ocean going ships in the world. They traveled to Nova Scotia, where 450 college students boarded the ship. From there they traveled to Iceland, Norway, St. Petersburg, Russia, Poland, Belgium, France, Ireland, and Spain, before returning to Fort Lauderdale after 75 days on the voyage. The experience, the family agreed, was a great personal and professional one.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN COLLEGE ANNUAL REPORT 2005-2006

Rocky's first charter 500 Club member, Nancy Larsen, is congratulated by Shari VanDelinder, director of special events, in front of the 500 Club Wall of Fame in Prescott Hall.

Rocky 500 Club growing

Rocky Mountain College has always been about the students. Over 95% of students receive some form of a RMC scholarship each year. These scholarships would not be possible without generous financial support.

The Rocky 500 Club was established to reach a $250,000 goal. 500 individuals give a "mission essential" gift of $500. Members receive a complimentary limited edition Rocky 500 pin, highlighting the gold and green colors that have long captured the spirit of Rocky. Additionally, member names will be included in a special Rocky 500 Wall of Fame displayed in Prescott Hall.

Alumni, parents and friends everywhere are joining the Rocky 500 Club. Jean Wigmore Lowry (BPI 1941) loved her time at Rocky (then called Billings Polytechnic Institute) and was able to attend because of a working scholarship she received her first year.

"This truly was the turning point in my young life. It led me not only into a life of further learning, but to friendships, working experiences, handling my own 'extra money,' and more," Lowry says.

Realizing the importance of giving back to the college that gave her so much, she joined the Rocky 500 Club. When she first heard about this charter club, she wanted to join but was unable to do so at the time. Several months later, she called to say that she had been able to save enough money and was hoping it wasn't too late to join. She now proudly wears her new Rocky 500 pin as a reminder of her time here and in support of today's students.

If you want to join this special group, call the RMC Development Office, 657-1006.

Rocky Mountain College senior Holly Cooper brought back a unique souvenir from Costa Rica where she was an intern at a tropical rain forest research station. She preserved a giant bullet ant in a vial of ethanol and has been wearing it on a necklace to classes. The ant, at least an inch long, was several times larger than the red ants that she studied at the La Selva Biological Station in north-eastern Costa Rica for 10 weeks this summer. A biology major, Cooper competed for one of ten summer internships (over 100 applicants) in a Research Experience for Undergraduates sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

Mr. Smith goes to New York City with MDU

James Smith, RMC assistant professor, business administration and economics, was selected by Montana Dakota Utilities to accompany MDU executives to New York City for a week of “real life” experience with corporate operations.

Smith joined Martin A. White, chairman and chief executive officer (who retired in August), along with the chief financial officer, chief operations officer, director of investor relations and directors of the various business units on the trip. One of the purposes of the trip was to meet with bond and stock analysts who rate companies. This was especially important because MDU was about to transfer leadership from White to new CEO Terry Hildestad and the company wanted to assure analysts of the smooth transition.

“It was an incredible experience, going to the financial center of the world and sitting in on high level meetings where MDU executives reported on every aspect of the company,” Smith said.

Another purpose was so Smith, and four other faculty members from other Montana colleges, would be able to convey what they learned to their students.

“The insight and experience gained on the trip will be integrated into several of my courses, including strategic management,” Smith said.

Smith said MDU covered all expenses.

“The highlights of the trip included participating in the opening bell ceremony at the New York Stock Exchange and getting to know MDU’s leadership team on a personal basis,” Smith added.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN COLLEGE ANNUAL REPORT 2005-2006

The Rocky Mountain College Master of Physician Assistant Program, celebrated its 10th year at its White Coat Ceremony for 21 graduates in the Great Room at Prescott Hall.

Physician assistants practice medicine under the supervision of a licensed physician. The concept of the midlevel provider developed from the basic premise that many tasks performed by physicians can be carried out with equal competence by other specially trained health professionals.

"The success of this program is certainly part of the reason Rocky Mountain College is ranked in the top 10 best comprehensive colleges in the West by U.S. News & World Report," Rocky President Michael Mace said.

The White Coat Ceremony included remarks by Mace, Joe Tritchler, director of the master of physician assistant program, and Mary Kelly McCormick, a graduate speaking on behalf of the class.

The 21 graduates include Tara Cooper, Tyesha Dent and Mariya Schifferns, all of Billings; Kristina Krieger, Molt; Elizabeth Sickler, Laurel; Bradley Andrew, St. George, Utah; Jason Balvitsch, Fargo, N.D.; Mel Bingham, Erda, Utah; Cynthia Ehret, Glendale, Colo.; Tracy Hale, Gurnee, Ill.; Hannelore Hinds, Oklahoma City, Okla; Jovanna Jacobson, Mill Creek, Wash.; Jeff Lien, Boise, Idaho; Roderick Maxwell, Riverton, Utah; Mary Kelley McCormick, New Smyrna Beach, Fla.; Jeanne Mehrens, Anaconda; Burton Mollman, McIntosh, S.D., Clinton Pfeifle, Power; Stacy Schroeder, Laramie, Wyo.; Hannah (Amon) Sexton, Livingston; and William Winter, Staunton, Va

RMC American Indians host arrow throwing

In lieu of the spring Pow Wow, the RMC American Indian Cultural Association hosted an arrow throwing tournament in April at Rocky Bowl.

The annual spring Pow Wow at Rocky Mountain College is scheduled for fall this year, according to RMC's American Indian Student Services advisor, Carolyn Pease-Lopez.

Arrow throwing is unique to the Crow tribe, according to Pease-Lopez. Tournaments are regularly held in late spring and throughout the summer.

"It's unusual for a tournament to be held this early, but we have a number of Crow consultants who have volunteered to help us organize this very unique event," Pease-Lopez said.

Sam E. McDonald, Jr. accepts the RMC Philanthropist of the Year Award given to him and his wife, Judith C. McDonald.

McDonalds named Philanthropists of the Year

At a special presidential reception Tuesday evening in Prescott Hall's Great Room, Sam E. & Judith C. McDonald, Jr. were honored as Rocky Mountain College's Philanthropists of the Year.

RMC President Mike Mace expressed gratitude for the many contributions the McDonalds have made over the years to Rocky as well as the community.

"Their extraordinary commitment to Billings is evident in everything they have supported from A to Z, from American Legion baseball to ZooMontana," Mace said "Rocky Mountain College is proud that Sam and Judith have bestowed so many gifts to this college."

The commons in the student center is named for the McDonald Family and the soccer field for Wendy's of Montana, a gift of the Judith C. and Sam E. McDonald Family.

Best known as Chairman of Wendy's of Montana, Sam E. McDonald, Jr. is the patriarch of a family who have shared their success and good fortune with many. Sam's wife, Judith C., who is Vice President of Wendy's of Montana; his daughter Deborah V.; his son Gregory C., who is President and CEO of Wendy's of Montana; and Greg's wife Eileen, are involved in charitable pursuits. In 2000, the family established the Wendy's Foundation, for which Deborah serves as Executive Director.

"You make a living by what you earn," McDonald said. "And you make a life by what you give."

McDonald first became interested in Rocky when he was in junior high school and spent time at the old gym on campus where Herb Klindt and Frank Matthew coached. Klindt was athletic director, and "both were wonderful mentors for me."

Amanda Kudrna, 21, was one of several Rocky Mountain College students who competed at the national Intercollegiate Horse Show in Harrisburg, Pa.

RMC riders win trip to nationals

Of the 71 Rocky students who are equestrian majors, 14 students compete, said Scott Neuman, RMC equestrian program director. He is pleased at the number of students advancing so far during the first full year that the equestrian team has competed.

“We’re real happy with the results,” Neuman told The Billings Gazette.

After placing first in a regional competition in Billings, Rocky students rode against riders from throughout the West at a zone championship in Sacramento. There, Rocky’s English team placed second to a Stanford University team. The strong showing qualified the Rocky team for the national horse show.

RMC art gallery named for 'founders' Alice Ryniker and Bob Morrison

"Our 'founding fathers' are here tonight," Jim Baken, RMC art professor said as he introduced Alice Ryniker and Bob Morrison to an audience of 200 people who attended a reception in May honoring the founder and first teachers of RMC's art department.

"Between the two of them, they have almost 50 years of teaching here. We thought it was fitting to rename this gallery Ryniker-Morrison," Baken said.

Ryniker, who started Rocky Mountain College's art program five decades ago, and Morrison, a longtime Rocky art professor, were invited to be the first artists to exhibit in the newly renamed Ryniker-Morrison Gallery in Rocky's Tech Hall.

The artist reception and gallery rededication drew an interesting crowd, from Ryniker's two art teachers, Ben Steele and Lyndon Pomeroy, to several of Ryniker's and Morrison's former students to current Rocky art students.

Ryniker is still painting watercolors and teaching. Morrison, 81, hasn't stopped creating either.

Morrison taught art at Rocky from 1967 to 1987.

"I learned as much as I taught," he said. "We couldn't have done any of this if it weren't for the great students we had over the years."

Anonymous donor bestows $3 million gift

An anonymous donor, impressed with Rocky Mountain College's financial turnaround, gave $3 million to the College in January.

"This is a new friend of the College who is impressed with what we are accomplishing and has confidence in Rocky's future," RMC President Michael Mace said.

From the $3 million total, the donor gave $1 million stipulating the revenue from its investment earnings be used as unrestricted funds as long as the College continues to maintain a balanced budget, something Mace accomplished quickly when he was named president in October. At the time, Rocky had a deficit of $750,000. The donor expressed confidence in the new administration's ability to prudently manage the college finances.

The donor gave $2 million stipulating the revenue from that sum's investment earnings be used for student scholarships.

Ranked as one of the top ten best comprehensive colleges in the West by U.S. News & World Report, Rocky nevertheless experienced financial troubles which resulted in some staff cutbacks and strict budgeting. In October President Thomas R. Oates resigned and Mace was named his successor.

"We have demonstrated fiscal discipline without lessening the quality of education," Mace said.

Mace was able to eliminate the deficit, so that Rocky emerged as a stronger institution which would be better able to provide an exceptional education for its students.

Mace also vowed to keep the community apprised of the college's progress as it worked on long-term solutions to funding and renewed efforts to build its endowment.

RMC is a vital part of the community as well as a leader in the region, and its $20 million annual economic footprint is testimony to its commitment, Mace noted.

"Gifts like this improve our college, but also improve the economy of our city and state," he said. "Because we are a private institution, we do not receive taxpayer support like the state University System, which means we are tremendously grateful for the thousands of people who have nurtured Rocky over the years.

We are also tremendously aware of how careful we need to be in seeing those dollars are well used."

The donor hoped others would make contributions to Rocky in recognition of the positive turnaround.

"The donor made it clear we had established confidence and hoped others would recognize that and lend their support," Mace said. "That is high praise and a great recommendation."

Mace said he and the board of trustees not only were grateful for the gift, but were made even more appreciative of the responsibility they had for continuing to make Rocky one of the premier colleges in the country.

"I said when I took over, there was a reason we were being ranked highly by U.S. News & World Report, were successful in building our enrollment, graduating the largest class in our history, and securing grants for a variety of programs. It's because there is no better faculty, staff or student body than this one. People recognize that and want to support it."

Cruising Toward The Future

Black Tie Blue Jeans Scholarship Benefit 2006

Rocky Mountain College

Browns named 2006 BTBJ Honorary Chairs

Rockwood and Marilyn Brown, a couple with longtime civic and professional ties to Billings, have been selected to serve as honorary chairs for the Rocky Mountain College scholarship benefit.

“The 19th annual Black Tie Blue Jeans gala event is proud to have the Browns as this year’s honorary chairs to help the college’s premier scholarship benefit,” said Michael Mace, RMC president. “Their knowledge about and appreciation for the college make them ideal chairs as we raise funds to help our students.”

The Browns will be recipients of the RMC Lifetime Achievement Award. The theme this year is nautical, “Cruising Toward the Future.”

Rockwood Brown was born and raised in Billings. He earned his B.A. and his law degrees at the University of Montana and began practicing law in 1952. He retired full-time from the Brown Law Firm after 48 years, but still councils for the firm. He is senior vice president at Wyo-Ben, where he said he is privileged to work with two of his nephews.

While active in his career, Brown also made time for his community, serving on the Board of Rocky Mountain College for 21 years and on the Billings Parks Board for 20 years. He also served as chairman of the Montana Supreme Court Commission on practice.

He was instrumental in establishing the Keith Brown Scholarship Fund which awards a scholarship to an RMC junior and senior, based on ethical behavior in business.

Brown met his wife, Marilyn, at a picnic on the Rims. A native of Beach, North Dakota, Marilyn is a devoted wife and mother. They have five children and three grandchildren. Becky is a veterinarian in Joliet; ; Scott owns the Base Camps in Billings and Bozeman; Holly is a retired nurse from Billings; Julie, a lawyer; and Nancy, a nutritionist, are both in the San Diego area.

While serving as an RMC board member, Brown witnessed some hard times for RMC, but he is pleased the college has prevailed and “is on the road to success.”

Music for this year’s BTBJ will be provided by In Cahoots.

Thanks to the generosity of Harry Gotwals and his wife, Mary, a bighorn ram sculpture done by Mark Moak, RMC art professor, resides on campus. Gotwals, a founder and chairman of Billings Depot, Inc. bought the ram for the depot, which did not have space for it, so the board elected to give it to Rocky. This sculpture joins many others on campus, including two horses done by both Moak and Jim Baken, another RMC art professor. Baken's ram is not on campus, but it is close by. Bought by the Spaulding family, it was donated to Alberta Bair Theatre, and greets theatre-goers at the entrance.
